

How to walk from 8th & Market to 18th & JFK entirely underground

1. Head downstairs into the 8th and Market MFL stop.
2. Walk toward the PATCO entrance. You'll find the doors to the Fashion District between that and the fare kiosks.
3. Follow the mall nearly to its end.
4. Make a left at the hallway immediately after the Philly Pretzel Factory. That'll take you back to the north side of the MFL at 11th Street.
5. Make a right and go about 30 feet until you see three metal walkways on your left.
6. Make a left onto one of those walkways to cross over to the MFL's southern tracks.
7. Make a right, then walk straight until the path ends. You'll know you made it when you see a portrait of Ben Franklin and a fork in the road.
8. Turn left at the fork.
9. Follow this pathway as it bends south around City Hall to the BSL Walnut-Locust concourse.
10. Bear right and follow the mirror image of the pathway you just took.
11. That will let you out to a three-pronged fork. Bear left, taking the pathway labeled "Market St West."
12. Follow that path straight for awhile. You'll know you're doing it right when you see the 15th Street MFL stop and turnstiles on your right.
13. Continue straight. Landmarks: Tiffany's Bakery, a pizza shop, clothing and wig stores.
14. After a while you'll see a sign for 18th and Market, directing you to continue straight.
15. That path will take you through glass double doors, then up a couple steps. Don't be alarmed.
16. Go straight for a bit. You'll see a sunbathed seating area with a fountain on your left — great for taking a break, even though you're nearing the end of your journey.
17. Past the seating area, there's a sandwich shop on your right. Keep going straight.
18. Follow the corridor to its end, when your only option left is to go up a staircase.
19. Go up the stairs.
20. You did it!
